Real Relief for Hoarders

By Nora Baladerian, Ph.D. Lic. Psychologist

Recently, I was watching these TV shows where therapists were “working with” hoarders, while an “intervention” was occurring, forcing them to give up their precious belongings. I did not see that the hoarder ever got to a place where they “went along with the program.” They were clearly in psychological pain.

A therapist online mentioned her patient was a hoarder. I contacted her and asked if I could see her patient for just four sessions, she could continue to see her, or not, her choice, but I wanted to see if I could help.

Session 1: Usual psychological intake session, but I asked about when the urge for hoarding began, and for a description of the most powerful losses or traumas in her life. The death of her husband. We tapped for that. No tapping regarding hoarding.

Session 2: She couldn't believe it and told me for the whole week she had not watched HSN...I had to ask what that was, and it was a TV show where they sell stuff 24/7. Whereas she used to watch it many hours daily, and buy stuff, that week she had not purchased anything, and had a significant reduction in her tv watching. She had begun to putter around, re-organizing things, putting some in piles to consider donating. I treated her for other life losses (trauma, sadness, betrayal).

Session 3: She had still watched no HSN and no new purchases. She had cleared out her dining room and actually used it as it is meant to function. She was thrilled, so excited, with many plans for which rooms were next and next. I think I did a TFT treatment for the positive of fully enjoying her life.

Session 4: She brought in three items. Which should she keep, and which should she not save? We discussed why keep or give away any of them. She wanted to keep only one... it felt good. We discussed the emotional value of each, and she selected one. She had no reluctance in releasing the other two. At this point, she was thrilled with how her house “was back!” She was enjoying each of the rooms in her house. She had people over. Her neighbors commented on all the stuff she was taking to donate. She was truly free of any distress in clearing her beautiful home, so she could enjoy it. For me, I got my answer. Treat “hoarders” with love and trauma treatment and they heal quickly.

I am so often asked, where should I start? What level of training is best for me? Or What is the fastest way to the top? So, I am listing all of the trainings, both E-Learning and Live Events. Hopefully this will help you all see what best fits your needs.

Last year we began the restructuring of our training programs, including the addition of the new protocols and materials. This started with our online algorithm course. Then this year we have just completed a new self-testing program and given the first of our new diagnostic level of TFT courses.

LIVE EVENTS:

Each year I work hard to find ways to make TFT available to more people and in more ways. Our new courses and events are doing just that.

I am very excited to announce our new training courses, both live and online, as well as our upcoming VT Conference.

In August, I am leading one of our most self-empowering courses in TFT, our Optimal Health which includes TFT Voice Technology level of training. This will be the last of these in the USA for this year and will be here in Virginia.

September brings us to our totally new Diagnostic level course. We have had many requests from practitioners in the USA, and since we now have an opening in our busy training schedule, this gives us the opportunity to offer the all NEW TFT Diagnosis: Finding a Specific Tapping Sequence, in the USA. This is the same course I presented, to rave reviews, in May at the Paris Energy Psychology conference. It was taped with the French translation and we will now be able to create an English version of this new course sooner than we had anticipated.

I will be offering the new TFT Diagnostic level training on September 8-9, 2018, in Charlottesville, VA. We will be filming it and those attending will receive a copy of the online course as well. This is an excellent opportunity to upgrade your TFT skills to the diagnostic level...

E-LEARNING AND ONLINE:

*In every training I have given over the last 25 years, I am asked
"how can I determine where to tap for myself?"*

NEW: LEARN SELF TESTING

While this amazing tool is taught at our Optimal Health level of TFT, I have long wanted to be able to make it available to all the other levels of TFT. It is so self-empowering to be able to help ourselves, both before and while we continue to help others.

All of us are faced with daily traumas, stress, anxiety and toxic exposure, often, beyond our control. If we have the tools to release, heal and neutralize these negative aspects of our lives, as they occur, we have the ability to reach and more fully enjoy the positive.

I speak from a very personal understanding as I too have experienced many of the same things all of you face, sexual abuse as a child, loss of a parent, cancer, diabetes, financial loss, divorce, death of my spouse – the same things we all face as part of life.

However, I am so grateful I have had the tools of TFT and self-testing to release the fears, heal the traumas and physical conditions, allowing me to grow and learn.

TFT Self-testing allows me to stay centered in peace with confidence and joy every day.

I know from witnessing our long-time TFT practitioners, that regular and consistent use of their TFT self-testing tools, has provided them with the same benefit – a loving, peaceful and exciting life.

I have now created a new course for just this...

Long-time TFT Practitioner wins prestigious APA award

By Suzanne Connolly, LCSW, LMFT

The 2018 American Psychological Association Significant Contribution award given by the APA Committee on Disability Issues in Psychology was awarded this year to avid TFT promoter and practitioner, clinical psychologist Nora Baladerian. This is exciting news and as TFT practitioners we can all be proud. It's sometimes good to hear about the much larger contexts in which TFT takes place.

According to John Drimmer, Psy.D, Dr. Baladerian's work has "promoted inclusion, advanced knowledge, research, advocated for people with disabilities and fostered their empowerment." He describes Dr. Baladerian as "a tireless advocate, a scientist, a practitioner and a reformer" and he goes on to say that Dr. Baladerian is "a precious resource, of whom every psychologist should be proud."

Dr. Baladerian is described by former Assistant Professor of Psychology at UCLA, Gil Freitag, in his nomination letter, as a "recognized leader in the field". She is "often requested to address audiences nationally and internationally to share her knowledge and experience in the service of furthering the awareness of others who share her concern and are in a position to make the necessary institutional changes that advance the cause she celebrates". Dr. Baladerian's website- the Disability and Abuse Project- which has 635 members nationally and internationally; the weekly newsfeed she publishes on abuse of people with disabilities; and the ten international conferences she has hosted on the abuse of people with disabilities are among the many of Dr. Baladerian's accomplishments Dr. Freitag mentions.

Legal adviser, Thomas F. Coleman of the Spectrum Institute Disability and Guardianship Project, in his nomination letter, listed some of Dr. Baladerian's accomplishments in promoting the inclusion of people with disabilities through "promoting inclusion, advancing knowledge and research, participating in advocacy, and fostering empowerment of people with disabilities in society. He mentions specific contributions such as her work as a member of the California Governor's Commission on Personal Privacy, her work as co-chair of the Los Angeles City Task Force on Family Diversity and her ongoing work with adult protective service and child protective service agencies.

TFT AWARDS

In 2008, the U.S Dept. of Justice honored Dr. Baladerian with the National Crime Victim Service Award.

All this groundbreaking work began almost forty years ago when Dr. Baladerian was chosen by a California Blue Ribbon Commission to write a report on privacy invasion of people with disabilities.

She went on to formulate and conduct the largest national survey of abuse and disability ever conducted which led to The First Report-Victims and Their Families Speak Out, published in 2012, bringing awareness to the epidemic of abuse of people with disabilities. Nora's research has shown that people with intellectual disabilities are abused at a much higher frequency than the non-disabled population. She has written a variety of guidebooks on issues of disabilities and abuse. She is a sought after keynote speaker. Among her many talents, Dr. Baladerian speaks fluent Spanish having lived in Mexico City for five years.

Dr. Baladerian has led TFT trauma relief efforts in New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina after being invited by Charity Hospital and then two other Louisiana hospitals to provide TFT to hospital staff. While still at the Convention Center, a large TFT tent was set up by the National Guard. Of course she found ways to help people with disabilities when there was any down time to be found.

Currently, Dr. Baladerian serves as a consultant and expert witness on civil and criminal cases involving the abuse of persons with disabilities. She has a private practice in Palm Springs. She has many more crusades and adventures on the immediate horizon many of which include the promotion of TFT to help vulnerable people.

Personalized 30-Minute TFT Tapping Sessions.

An easy and affordable way to get private help. We've set aside a limited number of sessions to work privately with those who want to get a highly focused 30-minute consultation. In this private session, Joanne Callahan will lead you through the individual tapping sequences for your specific challenge or problems.

Zero Point Energy Field and Passive Healing Support

As many of you know we have long recommended Rescue Remedy. It was one of the first ways Roger found that would correct psychological reversal or negative polarity back in the early '80's. As I mentioned in my news e-zine early last month, we have some new passive healing tools that we have tested with both HRV, voltmeter and now Aura photography. We are using a technology from Germany that neutralizes the field and brings the vibration to that of a healing level. We apply this to various products.

I have experienced results with this myself with my dental implants. In the past my body has rejected dental implants – three times they were placed and then had to be removed. I finally resorted to a bridge. Then last year when I needed to have two teeth extracted I decided to try one more time. I had my dental implant posts placed in one of these field converters and then placed in my mouth. I had no swelling or pain and they healed beautifully. This has given me a whole new, healthier option for my dental reconstruction.

Another recent example was from one our trainers who had been using Rescue Remedy on a large injury/tumor location. I sent them a tube of Rescue which had been transformed in the zero field converter. When they used it, they noticed a significant decrease in the redness and swelling by the next morning.

In TFT, we are very aware of the importance of maintaining positive polarity and demonstrate this with a simple voltmeter during our trainings. We have seen these items also change negative polarity to positive polarity in these demonstrations.

We believe that this technology further enhances the healing properties of items like Rescue and the new Shungite products we are using.

TFT NEW PRODUCTS

We have been creating some new tools for supporting healing that we use along with TFT. As they can help us maintain a higher vibration and positive polarity, I believe they allow TFT tapping reach deeper and more consistent levels of healing. Click here to see what other tools we have available. We are now having these new tools available for attendees to experience and to do further testing at our Optimal Health courses.
